

A MCKINLEY DOUBLE

Revives Interest in Tariff Talk by Attacking the Major's Bill.

HE COULDN'T TALK LONG ENOUGH

To Please Those Who Wanted to Hear His Side of the Argument.

A DEAD RINGER FOR OHIO'S GOVERNOR

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Major McKinley is now out of Congress and in the Governor's chair of the State of Ohio, but the principal speaker in the House to-day on the tariff question was in person, features, voice and gestures so like him that an old-time member of the House might have fancied that time had turned back in his flight and he was listening again to Major McKinley as a young man in Congress making one of his first tariff speeches.

The speech of Mr. Bryan revived the flagging interest in the tariff discussion. It was the feature of the day, and as the young orator of the west, the small body of listeners he had at the start was augmented by the gossipers in the cloakrooms until he had the careful attention of a majority of the House—something unusual in this department. Mr. Bryan's voice was strong, clear, his personality pleasing, his gestures simple but forcible, like those of Major McKinley, his argument ingenious and his illustrations bright and appropos to his remarks.

A Sample of the Illustrations. One of the best of these illustrations was when he said the protection theory reminded him of his days on the farm, when they used to raise swine corners of fences by putting a beam under the corner, placing a chook in the middle and then bearing down on the other end. It raised the fence, but the burden was felt somewhere. The Protectionist, he said, took hold of an infant industry, then looked around for a good lot of consumers to serve as a chook. "Up went the infant industry, but down went the consumers," said Mr. Bryan, and his colleagues applauded.

The Republicans interrupted Mr. Bryan with a number of hard, knotty questions in the line of their side of the argument, but in the manner in which they were answered showed the speaker to be cool and collected, and although young in Congressional experience, accustomed to take and give in debate. He was down for only two hours, but the House gave him another hour, and then wanted him to keep on.

On motion of Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, a concurrent resolution was agreed to for the printing of 45,000 additional copies of the special report on the diseases of the horse.

New Mexico Still Happening. Mr. Joseph, of New Mexico, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill for the admission of New Mexico as a State of the Union. House calendar.

Mr. Smith, of Arizona, from the same committee, reported a bill for the admission of Arizona. Same order.

Mr. Goodnight, of Kentucky, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported back adversely a resolution preferring charges against Andrew P. McCombs, United States District Judge for the Northern District of Texas. The report was agreed to, and the resolution was laid upon the table.

The House then went into committee of the whole. Mr. Blount, of Georgia, in the Chair, on the free wool bill, and was addressed by Mr. Sayers, of Texas.

His speech was largely statistical and mainly devoted to a scathing criticism of the financial policy of the administration, which, he said, was so bad that when the bonds fell due in 1891, the administration was compelled to appeal to the holders of these bonds to continue them to the extent of $20,000,000. If this had been done by the British Ministry, he said, it would have been hurled from power in disgrace within a month after the fact had become known and Parliament had assembled.

Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, followed. He was in perfect sympathy with the majority of the Committee on Ways and Means in its decision to attack the tariff in detail. The main reason for preferring this plan was that there was some possibility of bringing relief to the tariff by the present law in this way. It was conceded that the passage of a general tariff bill at this session of Congress was absolutely impossible. If it could thus succeed in making any reduction in any of the schedules, it would have done something, and the relief actually brought was worth more to the Democratic party than the mere making of a record.

Mary and Her Little Lamb. The pending bill brought great advantage to some men and great disadvantage to the man the advantage which he had enjoyed of collecting money from the other nine. There had been a time in the history of Nebraska when its people had one sheep per capita—the mutton age, so to speak. But since that time had passed, Mr. Bryan, a woman in the State named Mary wanted a pet lamb, she would have to go out of the State to get enough lambs to go round.

After reviewing the binding twine and cotton bills, Mr. Bryan said in conclusion: "The country has nothing to fear from the Democratic policy upon the tariff question. It means a more equal distribution of the great advantages of this country. It means that the men who produce the wealth shall retain a larger share of it. It means that enterprise shall be employed in natural and profitable industries, not in unnatural and unprofitable industries. It means more employment for labor and better pay. It means the 'maximum of product from the minimum of toil.' It means commerce with other countries and ships to carry on that commerce. It means prosperity everywhere and not by piecemeal. It is for this reason that the young men of this country are coming to the Democratic party, as Mr. Clarkson, that high Republican authority, declared. It is because we are right, and right will triumph. Repetition in the Democratic platform."

"The day will come, and that soon, I trust, when wiser economic policies will prevail than those to which the Republican party is wedded; when the laws of this country will be made for all, and not for a few; when those who annually congregate about this Capitol, seeking to use the taxing powers for purposes of private greed, will have lost their occupation; when the burdens of Government will be equally distributed, and its blessings will be shared that day! When it comes, to use the language of another, 'Democracy will be King; long live the King!' [Loud applause.] The advocates of the McKinley bill had thought that they were bound hand and foot. Where were the conspirators to-day? Where were the men who were largely instrumental in fixing that iniquitous legislation on the people?"

Mr. Bryan—I believe that one did succeed in being elected Governor in a Republican State by a minority vote. [Laughter.] To such extremes has this great Caesar come that it now welcomes the coming of a Republican State more than before it greeted the conquest of an empire. [Applause and laughter.]

As Mr. Bryan took his seat he was the recipient of the warmest and heartiest congratulations of his party colleagues. The committee then rose and the House adjourned.

Little Done in the Senate. In the Senate to-day the House bill ratifying the act of the Arizona Legislature, appropriating $50,000 in aid of exhibition at the World's Columbian Exposition, was reported and passed. Mr. Pettigrew, from the Quadri-Centennial Committee, reported an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropriating $100,000 for expenses incurred and to be incurred in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition. Referred.

Mr. Hale, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill for the construction (by contract) of three battle ships of from 7,500 to 10,000 tons displacement, two armored coast defense vessels, five gunboats of 800 to 1,200 tons displacement and eight first-class torpedo boats. Referred.

Mr. Peffer introduced, by request, a bill with the following comprehensive title: "Creating a fund for the payment of pensions and for setting our army of idle laborers at work on extensive public improvements, for the removal of the strongest incentive to crime among the poor and to vice among the rich, for protecting the American from the influx of undue alien competition, and for other purposes." The fund contemplated in the bill is to be furnished by a graduated tax on incomes and real estate. Referred.

After an executive session the Senate adjourned.

THE SAGACITY OF A DOG

Leads to the Discovery of the Body of a Man Who Committed Suicide.

CINCINNATI, March 16.—Gustav K. Link, a farmer 34 years of age, living near Montgomery, Ohio, committed suicide Monday afternoon. The supposed cause for the rash deed is that Link was engaged to marry a young lady of Montgomery and his parents objected to the match. He had been moody ever since his family began their bitter opposition to his union with the girl he loved. Monday, after eating dinner, he went out to work on the farm. That was the last seen of him alive. About 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon his sister's attention was attracted by the barking of a dog at the stable. She went out to see what was the matter, and found the dog inside the stable barking and running toward the carriage shed. Hastily pushing open the door she saw a man lying on the floor of the shed with her brother Gustav, covered with blood, and a 32-caliber revolver at his side. In the dead man's right temple was a bullet hole which showed how the deed had been committed.

The body was left where it was found until Squire Todd arrived. The Squire proceeded at once to hold an inquest, and neglected to notify the Coroner, who learned of the suicide only yesterday through Undertaker Boun. The dead man is a brother of Morris Link, a wealthy contractor. His parents are well to do and own a farm of 200 acres, which Gustav managed. The family's objections to his marriage were not on account of the young lady, who bears the best of reputation, but because they did not want him to get married at all, and this fact is supposed to have driven him to desperation.

THAT FAMOUS WOLF CHASE

The Philadelphia Humane Agents Comdemned—No Action Yet Taken.

James Ellis, manager of Paul H. Hacke's stock farm near Greensburg, was in Pittsburgh yesterday, shipping Mr. Hacke's wolf hounds to Denver, where they will engage with another pack of hounds in a wolf chase for $1,000. Mr. Ellis says the Philadelphia humane agents acted badly at the recent wolf hunt, and also evidenced an ugly spirit in comparing the hounds to curs. "The truth is," Mr. Ellis said, "those Philadelphia agents should have been arrested for trespass when they came on the farm, and they had no more business shooting the wolf than they would have to shoot a gray squirrel which the dogs were chasing."

Agent O'Brien said yesterday that the society had not yet decided what course they would pursue in the case of the wolf hunt, but he did not believe that any arrests would be made.

STOLE 900 TONS OF COAL

How Uncle Sam Was Deceived Out of a Part of His Winter's Supply.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16.—William E. Hodge, a dealer who has supplied coal to the Washington arsenal for the past five years, was arrested to-day on a charge of grand larceny. About a week ago the winter's supply of coal was found to have been exhausted. The orders which had been issued in the supply during the winter were checked up, and it was found that the deficiency amounted to 900 tons of coal, and secured an admission from Sergeant William B. Rapp, who superintended the weighing of the coal as it was delivered, that he had been paid $60 by Hodge to sign receipts for coal never delivered. Rapp is also under arrest.

AFTER THE POWELLTON FURNACE

A Syndicate Representing the Pennsylvania Iron Works Wants It.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—Representatives of the syndicate which has been negotiating for the purchase of the Powellton Furnace at Saxton, on the line of the Broadtop Railroad, are examining the plant, and it is probable that an announcement of its purchase will be made in a short time. The syndicate is headed in this city by W. L. Elkins, Jr., and it is understood that he represents the Pennsylvania Iron Works. The Powellton Furnace is a valuable property, and there are several thousand acres of land surrounding it which are very rich in iron ore.
